College Fair Night

Braving the rainy weather, 370 students and their parents had access to representatives from forty colleges and universities, branches of the military and financial institutions to assist them with college and career decisions at the recent College Fair Night at Goose Creek Memorial High School.

The event was open to students from Goose Creek Memorial, Robert E. Lee, and Sterling high schools, along with IMPACT Early College High School.

The purpose of College Fair Night was to distribute information on topics related to starting college. College & Career Readiness Counselors and grade level counselors also were available to assist students and families.

"Everything went smoothly," said Dr. Precious Reimonenq, college and career readiness coordinator. "Students had time to talk to the representatives, ask questions, and get the information they needed."

Attendees visited various tables, obtaining information and picking up give-aways. Many students had been assigned a list of questions by their teachers to ask the representatives. Bonita Peebles from Texas Guarantee in Austin spoke about the basics of financing college, and families rotated into the library to ask her additional questions about the process.

Goose Creek CISD students (l to r) Robert Toles, Lee High School; Neil Hernandez, Lee High School; Elizabeth Hernandez, Sterling High School; Anthony Perez, Memorial High School and Ayanna Trinh, Memorial High School, gather information about colleges at the recent College Fair Night hosted by GCM.
