Walker Elementary observes Rodeo Day

The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo came to Victoria Walker Elementary School on Feb. 24 for the school's first-ever Rodeo Day celebration.

Pint-sized cowboys and cowgirls were everywhere — on the sidewalk and playground, in the classrooms and the hallways in honor of Go Texan Day.

The dress-up tradition, which began in the 1950s as a way to promote the rodeo, has become a kind of unofficial holiday for the region.

Throughout the school day, Walker students rotated from classroom to classroom to learn about the different components of the rodeo.

There were lessons on the two-step and line dancing, rodeo clowns regaled the students with stories of daring and adventure, speakers talked about cattle drives, branding and all things rodeo.

The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo chose Walker to participate from a long list of greater Houston area schools vying for the free event.
