Impact Early College High School to host information meetings

Parents seeking more information about Goose Creek CISD's Impact Early College High School at Lee College are encouraged to attend one of two parent meetings starting next week.

The first meeting is Monday, March 7 at Horace Mann Junior School. The meeting will start at 6 p.m. in the Horace Mann Junior School auditorium.

A second parent meeting will be March 24 at Baytown Junior School, in the school auditorium at 6 p.m.

Parents will be able to ask questions regarding Early College High School and the application process. There will be a translator at each session to provide information in Spanish.

Impact Early College High School engages students in a rigorous and supportive academic program of study that blends high school and college work with the goal that students will graduate with a high school diploma and an associate degree or 60 college credit hours toward a baccalaureate degree — tuition free.

This partnership with Lee College targets first-generation college goers, English language learners, students at-risk of not graduating, and other young people underrepresented in higher education.

About Impact ECHS

Impact is an acronym for Intelligent Minds Participating in Acts of Courageous Talent. The school opened last year with 107 students, expanding to 400 in the next three years.

There also will be five recruitment meetings this month:

- March 7- Horace Mann Junior School
- March 10- Cedar Bayou Junior School
- March 11- Highlands Junior School
- March 21- Baytown Junior School
- March 22- Gentry Junior School

Applications will be provided to each student at their junior school recruitment sessions and will also be available on the Impact Early College High School website beginning March 7.

"We had a successful first year," said Principal Karen Smithson. "The students currently enrolled have risen to the challenge of taking a full Pre-AP high school load along with completing 9 college hours as freshmen in high school. I am looking forward to meeting with parents and prospective students who are interested in applying to attend."

For more information, contact Smithson at 281-420-4802.
