Gentry teacher flips (pancakes) over test scores

Gentry Junior School eighth grade history teacher Taunya Breaux promised her students pancakes if all of them passed the U.S. History TAKS test.

"When I found out that 100 percent had passed, I was afraid that I had bitten off a little more than I could chew because I had 134 students to fix pancakes for," Mrs. Breaux said.

But, Mrs. Breaux was determined to keep her promise, so she called Javier Mendez, a local IHOP manager, to see if he would like to help me out.

"Before I could get the proposition out of my mouth, he immediately said that he wanted to partner with me in this venture," she said. "I told him that the kids had worked really hard this year, and he not only donated 200 pancakes, but insisted that I come and flip a few of the pancakes myself. I was overwhelmed with his generosity."

On top of donating the pancakes, IHOP also donated all the syrup, place settings and butter and even an IHOP apron as a memento for Mrs. Breaux.

"I will never forget this year or these students. I am so very proud of my students this year," she said. "They truly are deserving of this special treat."
