

Student chefs cooking up tasty casseroles, cookies for sale

The Culinary Arts Program at the John M. Stuart Career Center wants you to know about the delicious casseroles and cookies they sell.

The casseroles are hearty entrees that can provide your family with a great meal when you are too pooped to cook!

There are eight kinds of cookies baked by the students. They include Chocolate Chip, Ranger, Peanut Butter, Oatmeal Raisin, Snickerdoodle, Pecan Sandies, Lemon Rounds, and Drop Sugar.

"Ordering food from the Culinary Arts Program gives our students valuable kitchen experience that they need," said Stuart Career Center head chef Tina Andrade.

All casseroles are prepared, frozen in foil pans, and served in three sizes.

Large size pans are 9-inch by 13-inches and serve 6-8.

Small size pans are 9-inch round and serve 4-6.

Individual size pans serve 2-4.

While the school often has one or two extra in storage, please try to give them two days notice for large orders.

To place an order, please contact Tina Andrade at tina.andrade@gccisd.net or call 281-422-3562.

There is also a meat-processing program at the Stuart Career Center that provides training for 11th and 12th grade students.

These students are taught skills in various areas, such as safety, meat quality, meat identification, meat grading and selection, harvesting principles, meat fabrication, meat preservation, meat merchandising and marketing, and leadership.

Students in the class are also gaining knowledge in character education, 21st century employability skills, and work ethic.

The program sells steaks, marinated products, pork cuts and sausages.
